

Important information

Clientèle Life is not able to accept responsibility for ensuring that its clients comply with all of the laws applicable in the country in which they live. For example, clients are expected to make their own arrangements with regard to any personal taxation matters, foreign exchange regulation compliance or financial advisers' registration (where applicable). The company itself offers no product or financial advice whatsoever. Under no circumstances will the company provide a third party or other agency with the personal details of its clients, staff or IFAs.

Clientèle Life prides itself in being open and transparent in all dealings with its policyholders and subscribes to the "Codes of Conduct" of the undermentioned associations. Should you wish to access these codes of conduct the following links are provided for your convenience.
